EX-SENATOR NYE, of Nevsda, is of the opinion that as we near the Centennial anniversary of our national birth "there is not much politics left." He might have added that there is not much principle left,

THE success of the Centennial would seem to be assured. Twenty foreign Governments have already accepted the invitations to take part in it. Is it not about time that our own people should begin to show the same interest in it, and not leave all the work to Pennsylvania and Philadelphia? Do the journalists who oppose it really represent public opinion?

WEFEINT this morning a plain statement of the financial condition of the District as prepared by the late Comptroller on the occasion of his retirement from office. The exhibit is a most gratifying one to those who have the credit of the District at heart. and there can be no doubt that the tax-payers will use every effort to second the Commissioners in their endeavors to release those collaterals which are now hypothecated in order that a more favorable disposition may be made of them by legitimate negotiations at their full value.

THE few modest and earnest words spoken by the President over the grave of the lamented Lincoln, at Springfield, on Thursday, must have touched the heart of every render. They are the honest and just estimation of a great and guileless heart, which has ceased to beat, by a sorrowing friend and patriot, who deplores, in common with his fellow-citizens, the loss which the nation has suffered in his death, while he draws a lesson for the present and the future from his unselfish and devoted example. While they can add nothing to the lustrous glory which surrounds the name of the deceased President, they speak volumes in favor of the noble soul and appreciative judgment of the living one.

JOURNALISM. The Methodist of this week says: "We "observe, as being in evidence that the "tone of American journalism has greatly "improved within the last dozen years, "that when the party in power wished to "secure a 'reliable' organ, it had to make "up the stock and start's new paper; that "It was necessary to offer the new paper  at a lower price than the other papers to "enable it to compete with them; and that "its first number had thousands of purerchasers who bought it as a curiosity." We cannot agree with our religious cotemporary in the above opinions, and we are certain that if it had looked a little below the surface of affairs it would not have put ment of a new journal in New York city is no evidence, one way or the the other, that the tone of journalism is improving or deteriorating. In that city and State a certain number of gentlemen were dissatisfied with the paper which advertised itself as the only Republican paper in New York; it did not represent their other establishments, it was the most natural thing in the world that they should set up in business for themselves. According to the theory of the Methodist. the more independent newspapers become the better their "tone." The experience of the last couple of years certainly does not sustain that position. Take the case of dence in his business capacity, and his post the New York Sun. It was purchased for Mr. Dana by some respectable gentlemen is New York, mainly belonging to and in sympathy with the Republican party. In is New York, mainly belonging to and in sympathy with the Republican party. In the beginning it was conducted as a Republican journal. It supported Gen. Grant for the Presidency in 1868; its editor became so enthusiastic during that campaign that he even wrote poetry in his advocacy, calling upon the Opposition to match him. But when the matchless candidate was elected President and failed to give him office, except the office of a spy, Mr. Dana became independent. Was the tone of the paper improved thereby? And so of the Tribune. It was a good Republican organ, as it is the fashion to call Republican papers, until its editor became insane on the subject of the Presidency. Was its tone improved by his nomination at Cincinnati and Ballimore? When it left the Repub- fire-proof safes and private offices, and their lican party it became the organ of the Greeley faction, and, after the overwhelming defeat of November, 1872, what is called independent. We may be prejudiced, but really we cannot see where or in what respect its tone has been improved.

There is a good deal of sheer ponsense eald and written on this subject of newspaper tone and independent journalism. Looking back to the past the honors of fournalism are worn by the party journal-There is Mr. Blair and Father Ritchie, and Prentiss and Greeley, Green and Seston, and Gales and a hundred others, who stood out like mountain peaks in partisan history. A new generation, however, has improved upon their work and their example, and to succeed we must all become independent. Perhaps they are right, but if Reid and Halstend and Bowles and White and Watterson were to be transferred to-morrow from a world which they seem to think is unworthy of them what reason is there for believing that they would be remembered longer than twentyfour hours? Their whole course has been characterized by simply a factious opposition to the Administration; to, in nine cases out of ten, a bitter and unjust criticism of public men. They are identified with no great reform; they cannot point to a single instance where they influenced legislation, or molded the thought of the country. They publish great newspapers, collect all the information that is possible to collect, and that is all. That they have in any way advanced journalism in the United States, improved its tone, or made it better or broader, is very far from being

THE RESULTS OF THE WAR. We have frequently asserted that the maleontents, the Democracy and the exsiaveholders, of the South, in violation of the terms of the surrender of the Confederate armies: in violation of the reconstruction acts, and in violation of the war amendments to the Constitution, seek to obtain not only a profitable recompense for the destruction of legitimate property during the war, but payment for alleged value of their slaves, who were emancinated by

Ex-Senator R. M. T. Hunter, of Virginia, as we have repeatedly explained, is the most influential leader in the movement to secure this result. That he is not alone in his effort must be apparent to every one who has even a casual knowledge of curfent affairs in the South. The newspapers of that section, while they have not at all times indorsed the proposition, have hinted at it as among the possibilities of the future, and when Mr. Hunter, a little more than a year ago, went so far as to base his claims for recognition as a political leader by the citizens of his State upon a letter or address arguing the unconstitutionality of the Emancipation Proclamation, the Conservative newspapers did not hesitate to declare their belief that he had struck the key-note of the chorus in the political anthem which would lead the Southern people back to power and wealth. In short, there was a

The New York Commercial Adv esponsive throb throughout the entire South to the appeal made by him in behalf of the cupidity of his fellow-slaveholders, and the direct result was extended discussion, which has ended in the publication of advertisements something like the following, which we copy from a Georgia exchange of recent date:

NOTICE TO FORMER SLAVE OWNERS IN THE NINTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

OF GEORGIA. THE undersigned proposes to open in Gainesville, Georgia, a Register for the entry of the name, age and sex, and also the market value in specie, of each slave held prior to Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, i. e. January 1, 1863. Said Registry to be made in well-bound books, that are to be kept in fireproof vault. This is done with a view to getting pay for them at some future day. The list should be sworn to before an officer authorized to administer oaths, for general purposes. The fee for registration is Ten Cents for each Name on the list. Clubs containing one hundred names will be recorded for Five Dollars, Address

M. W. RIDEN. U. S. Claim Agent, Gainesville, Hall Co.; Ga.

Of course it will be said that the person Riden, whose name is attached to the foregoing advertisement, is an adventurer, that he is a money-making "sharp," and that success in his business could only result from the fact that his pretentions are so plausible as to delude ignorant people. We want no better argument than such an explanation to prove that the Southern people have faith in the ultimate payment of the "claims" referred to. If they did not hope for such a result they would and could not be led to countenance such a proposition, and we all know that even the shadow of a hope is the germ of earnest conviction in the human breast. We may characterize Riden as we please, as a fraud of the most palpable kind; but we must admit that, like the mountebank or quack who offers for sale a specific remedy, he could not succeed if he did not appeal to the people who are suffering, or imagine they suffer, from the specific disease for which the remedy is put forward as a certain cure. In other words Riden would not venture to place his infamous proposition before the public if he was not encouraged to do so by the knowledge that the people to whom he appeals are ready to respond with their ten-cent or five dollar contributions.

The next step after this is the assumption by the United States of the debts of the Confederacy, the pensioning of rebel soldiers by the General Government and the exaltation of treason and traitors above loyalty and over the martyrs of Andersonville, Saulsbury, Belle Isle and Libby. As we forth so extraordinary a proposition. The said a few days ago, the people of the North have been misled as regards the true condition of affairs in the South, and do not understand that votes cast for the opponents of the Republican party, however covert their enmity to its principles may be, are really votes cast for the supremacy of the White Leagues, the Tax Unions, the Ku-Klux Klans and the Hunters and Ridens, who would saddle upon their conquerors views, and they did not care to be held rethe expense of their own tresson, and who sponsible for its opinions. They were would disgrace the proudest page of American history by blotting from its record the evidence that the war for slavery was nal from which they seceded. To make fought in vain. newspapers was their business, and when EVERY NEW business enterprise having force and integrity at the back of it is sure of a cor dial reception in this city, and this remark never had a truer illustration than in the success attending the new bouse of Asbury G. Appleman & Co., bankers and brokers, 419 Seventh street. Mr. Appleman, although a young man, has created a wide-spread confiexcellent judgment in monetary affairs is often gerstown, Md. Bank, and among his indorsers in Washington are the prominent names of Mr. Charles A. James, cashler Bank of Washe ington, and Mr. Montgomery Blair; in Phila delphia, the Bank of North America; in New York, the First National Bank; in Baltimore, the People's Bank and Fisher & Sons, bankers; and in Hagerstown, Mr. Appleman's old home, the Attorney General of Maryland, Mr. A. K. Syester, recommends him as entirely worthy of trust and confidence. Appleman & Co. are doing a general banking and broker's business, buying and selling gold and silver, bonds of all descriptions, dealing in District securities, and are giving special attention to bills, accounts and claims in the several Departments of the Government. Their house is substantially and handsomely fitted up, having marble counters, business is already large. We are pleased in being able to make this general reference, feel ing satisfied that we have a most valuable addition to the business circles of Washington, and a new citizen who will be an humor to the elty, and in the extension of a cordial reception we join with very many who have personal knowledge of Mr. Appleman's skill in business and thorough probity in all his dealings.

IT IS ABOUT TIME that some disposition was made of the Plympton Company and the envelope contract. The public is tired of the whole thing, and the newspapers are beginning to get sick of the discussion. Day after day we are called upon to print paragraphs on the subject which are really apologies for the nonperformance of a contract into which the Plympton people entered, but which, it seems, they are unable to perform. The only way out of the difficulty which the Department can see now is to readvertise for thirty days. Meanwhile the public must wait, and suffer all the incovenience which the leading postmasters in the country declare they are suffering. If the contract cannot be given to the next lowest bidder; if there is an old law of half a century ago against it, let us have the advertisement and an end of the matter. The Postmaster General has introduced a great many reform in his Department. In the present conflict between two contractors there is great danger that he will lose the popularity he has a ouired, and thereby damage his administration Let the company be indulged as much as pos sible, but not at the expense of the publ The thing has gone about far enough.

ART NOTES.

A special exhibition of enamel work has been arranged at the South Kensington Museum, and is now open to the public. One of Mr. Foley's latest portrait statues-tha of John Stuart Mill-will, it is stated, shortly be placed on the Victoria Embankment.

Mr. Fred. James, of this city, was a few days ago awarded the first art prize at the Indianapoli Industrial Exposition for his very clever picture entitled, "Love me, Love my Dog." The ercavations at Rome bring every day to light some new object of interest. Among the last is a bust in perfect condition of the Empress Piotins, wife of Trajan, which will be deposited in the museum of the Capitol.

The Roppel states that MM. Monduit Bechet e

Cie, who were charged with the restoration of the Colonne Vendome, have nearly completed their difficult work, and that the column will probably be set up again in the course of the autumn. The exhibition of models for the statue of Lam rtine has been opened at the Ecole des Beaux Arts, Paris. The competition will be judged by a jury, and the works classified according to merit. Four prises will be awarded 3,000 francs, 2,000 francs, 1,800 francs and 1,000 francs. In repairing the pavement of the Cathedral at Rouen there has been discovered in the centre of the nave a heart enclosed in a leasten box. M. Deville, the historian of the tombe of the cathedral, thinks that the heart may be that of Sibylia, wife of Robert II., Duke of Normandy.

In consequence of the great development in other cities of Germany of the special branches of industry, as watch and toy-making, of which Numberg at one time enjoyed, if not the monopoly, at any rate the principal share, the Bavarian Government has determined, by the establishment of more efficient local schools of art, to give the Numberg artisans the opportunity of recovering their lost prestige.

The fine painting of Palms Vecchie, "The Adoration of banking or raims vectors, The Alloration of the Shopherds," has been restored to its place in the Louvre, after being carefully cleaned and revarnished. The authorities have also removed the two false signatures of Titian, which had, no deabt, been affixed to enhance its value when the picture was sold, in 1885, to Louis XIV., for 2,218 livres.

Four important Egyptian statues in sculptured Four important Egyptian statuss in sculptured wood have recently been added to the Louvre collection. Three of these statuss belong to the earliest Egyptian dynastics, but the fourth is apparently of a more recent date. The Vicercy of Egypt sent a status somewhat similar to the largest of these to the Paris Exhibition of 1800, but it is asserted that, with this exception, no work of this kind belonging to the carrier specks of Egyptian art has ever found its way to Europe.

There has been discovered at the Castello di There has been discovered at the Castelle di Malpaga, near Bergamo, a freeso which is attributed to Titian, representing the visit of Christian L. King of Denmark, in 1464, to the famous condutiers Eartolemeo Collecol, who had retired and held his court there in his old age, after having successively served the Visconti against Venice, Venice against the Visconti Milan against the Duke of Saxony, and Florence against the Duke of Urbino.

The statue is chiseled from the purest Car-rars mayble, is mounted on a base of red-veined marble, and the whole is made to revolve by an ingenious concealed mechanism, so as to present the various phases, effects and expression of this unique and beautiful creation of plastic art. The statue is placed at the end of an elegant gallery built expressly for this object, is relieved by a semi-circular arrangement of wine-colored drape-ries, and is lighted from above.
